Mindgrub Technologies Launches Redesigned Website

Mindgrub's new site features a fresh look and a new portfolio viewer.

Baltimore, MD -- Mindgrub Technologies has launched its new Drupal-based website. The new site refreshes the brand and includes information on the services Mindgrub provides, including mobile, social, and web applications. The highlight of the relaunched site is a portfolio viewer feature that allows visitors to view samples of Mindgrub's work, using a matrix system so users can sort by industry and services.

"I'm excited to see the redesign go live," says Mindgrub President and CEO Todd Marks. "The new site has an interactive portfolio feature which allows our current and prospective clients to get a better feel for the work we do. Clients can filter to find examples of the type of project they're looking for rather than sifting through a lot of images."

The new site also includes easier navigation, a redesigned blog, and integration with social media. All new features were designed and implemented by the Mindgrub team with a focus on client experience.

The new Mindgrub website is live at: <http://www.mindgrub.com>
